ABSTRACT

Method, apparatus, and computer-readable medium for integrating online and 5 off-line commerce are provided. A customer of a business is enabled to arrange for purchase of goods or services from a web site of the business, while preferably present at a physical "point of sale" location of the business (i.e., one of its stores), and to pay for the purchase off-line at that location. The business (vendor) then initiates shipment of the order from a separate location.
